STEAMER WRECKED GOING UNDER MONONGAHELA BRIDGE

Quick Work on Part of Crew Prevented Capsizing of Boat and Probable Loss of Life.—Bridge Was Badly Damaged

The steamtug, Hazel Watson, towing a derrick boat collided with the bridge spanning the Monongahela at Monongahela yesterday morning, entailing heavy damage to the bridge.

The crew had evidently miscalculated the height of the derrick which struck the bridge with great force, tearing away almost 20 feet of the passenger way, disconnecting a pipe line, and twisting the iron work. The force of the collision turned the tow completely around, smashing a yawl. For a time it appeared as though the two would capsize, but quick work on the part of the crew prevented this. The accident was a spectacular one and was witnessed by a large number of people. A force of men under Superintendent Gregg was at once put to work repairing the damage.

Putting on Finishing Touches.

The painters are just putting the finishing touches on the handsome new Meyer's residence on Donner avenue.

When this work is completed Mr. Meyer's will have one of the finest houses in town. The house is three stories in height, the third story contains one finished room, a laundry, and a storage room. All of the latest conveniences have been installed throughout the house and the tile, mantle work and chandeliers are beautiful. The surroundings are also being put in first-class shape. Unfortunately Mr. Meyers finds that it will be impossible to move into his new home at present, and will as a consequence rent it for a time at least.

Installation and Banquet

Following the ceremonies which attended the installation of officers, the new [illegible] of Monessen Lodge I. O. O. F. [illegible] a sumptuous banquet in the lodge rooms in opera house hall last evening

AT THE THEATRE

The average western melodrama is a play of poor construction and consists for the most part of noisy climaxes. Such is not the case with Wild and Arnold's production of the famous life drama, "Tracy, the Outlaw," which will be seen at the opera house on Saturday evening, Oct. 27.

The play is exciting to the point of sensationalism, but at the same time the story is consistent and interesting and never fails to please lovers of strong dramatic situations. There are no less than five comedy characters in the piece, and the audience they cannot keep in a pleased frame of mind has yet to be found.

Messrs. Wild and Arnold have mounted the play with special scenery and electrical effects and in the course of the performance several first class specialties will be introduced. An excellent company of artists has been selected to present this life story of the most remarkable desperado of modern times. This production should not be confused with repertoire company performances.

Sustained Painful Injury

E. G. Johnson, a wire drawer at the Pittsburg Steel, sustained a painful injury while at work about 2 o'clock this morning. A wire pierced the back of his head just below the right ear. The injury was dressed by a local physician and is not considered serious.

WILL OPEN POOL PARLOR

Frazier Bros, two well known young men of this city, will open a new pool room on Donner avenue about Thursday of this week, in the room next door to the Kilroy hotel. The place is now being fitted up with the end in view of making it one of the best and most up to-date pool and billiard parlors in the valley. The best tables obtainable are being installed. One of the brothers, Robert Frazier, was until quite recently, foreman of the machine shops at the Tin Plate mill, while the other came here from Pittsburg a short time ago. Both of the boys are wide-a-wake hustlers and deserve success.

Twelve Candidates Last Evening.

Each evening the aspirants for a position on the Monessen basket ball team indulge in several hours practice on the skating rink floor. Last evening twelve candidates reported and Manager Vaughn kept them on the move every moment. Several of them are exhibiting unusual ability. They are all rapidly rounding into form and by the time the season opens, Manager Vaughn promises to have a team that will be able to hold its own with any five in this end of the state.

Left for Youngstown.

Mrs. David Rawson left on the 11:15 train today for Youngstown, Ohio, where Mr. Rawson holds a responsible position in one of the mills. Mrs. Rawson will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends here, but all extend to her their best wishes for future happiness in her new home.

TOOK HOUSE BY STORM

At the Star Theatre last night Stoddard & Wilson, the comedy musical artists, took the house by storm. Their classical musical specialty "The Rat Catcher" is both entertaining and amusing and they were loudly applauded. Miss Lulu Theis as a "Mulatto character artist" is without an equal and she was forced to respond to several encores. The motion pictures this week are excellent. Thursday evening the program changes.

Dance Saturday Night.

The dance which will be given in Kelly's hall Saturday night by the Independent club of Monessen is the first of a series which will be held during the winter, and it promises to be quite an enjoyable event. The arrangements and details are in competant hands and everything points towards a most pleasant time for those who attend.

Excellent music is assured as Greening's orchestra will be on hand, and those who have experienced the pleasure of tripping the light fantastic to the strains of this popular orchestra, know what that means.

Dr. A. D. McElroy, of McKeesport, recently made some remarks at a recent meeting of the Independent Americans in which he touched on the length of the school course in the state of Pennsylvania. He claims it is entirely too burdensome and should be reduced one half. He said.

"I believe that our public school course should be limited to ten years, what the average child should complete at the age of 16 years. The object of our public school system, considered from the standpoint of the state, is the making of good citizens. Within that time that object could be attained if it is attainable, and a foundation laid upon which a thorough education may be built, if the child has an inclination in that direction. Carry them to the age of 20 and the chances are they will always want to be carried."

"Scholars cannot be ground out by any prolonged mechanical system. Give them the essentials and let them come into contact with the realities as soon as possible and they will forget their own way. Let us throw aside the socialistic, communistic ideas that threaten to engulf and enslave us and let us preserve and build up the individual liberty that is ours by inheritance so that we may increase our God-given talents by using them, thus fulfilling the law of growth."

THEY are going to try prohibition in Atlanta. But it is to be hoped that mobs will be prohibited as well as whisky.

ACCORDING to Mr Longworth, the issue is "Stick to Roosevelt," and we don't know any of 'em who is sticking closer.

THE Donora business men have decided to work amends for their town via the political route. Hereafter all candidates for Municipal and County offices will have to take a bold stand for or against certain measures so the voters will know what to do when they go to the polls. Just now the town is working politics in order to have the Donora-Webster bridge become a reality. Friday night the Commissioners of Washington County will meet the business men's association to explain their position as to the building of the bridge. The Donora people feel that there has been unnecessary delay in this matter and that it is time to learn the cause.

The Donora people have hit the nail square on the head, when a public officer feels that the people are going to compel him to do his duty he gets right to work. The position of the Donora business men will no doubt bring satisfactory results.

The Labor of Mountain Climbing.

Below is a curious calculation on the amount of energy expended by a person weighing 168 pounds in climbing a mountain peak 7,000 feet high, the time allowed for the ascent being five hours: By careful calculation it is found that the total amount of labor performed is equal to raising 1,380,000 pounds to a height of one foot or that of raising one pound to a height of 1,380,000 feet. Of this enormous amount of work 1,176,000 foot pounds are expended by the muscles of the legs in raising or lifting the body, 12,000 by the heart in circulating the blood, 30,000 by the chest in breathing and 54,000 in the various exertions of balancing the body, overcoming friction of the ground, etc.

Finnish Matrimony.

All the way our driver had been very chatty. He told us how he had chosen his wife. He said: "There was some talk of her in the village. My aunt's nephew spoke to me of her, but I never saw her till the day before we were engaged. When I heard of her, I went to the puhumy—man of speech—who always arranges these things I gave him 5 marks for her. She liked what she heard of me, and she gave him, as she was bound, a white shirt. Then I thought I would see her, so we arranged to meet at church at Unnikieni, and we went there, and it was all right. We get on together."—"Vignettes of Finland."

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box

VICTORY ASSURED TO STUART AND HIS COLLEAGUES

Republicans Will Sweep the State at the Coming Election.

"IT'S UP TO YOU," SAYS UNCLE JOE

Speaker Cannon Tells Pennsylvanians They Have a Great Duty to Perform.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, October 23.

With but two weeks more of campaigning before them, the Republican state candidates have every reason to look forward with confidence to a great victory at the polls on November 6.

They have covered nearly every county in the state, and have met with the most enthusiastic greetings everywhere they have been. In many cases the crowds exceeded those that would ordinarily be got together in a presidential campaign.

Edwin S. Stuart, the nominee for Governor, by his frank and manly utterances, has won the hearts of his fellow citizens. They know of his splendid record as Mayor of Philadelphia, of the many testimonials that come to him from all sources after his retirement from that office, and they believe he will keep every pledge he has made in the present canvass.

Roosevelt Is Interested.

There has been no more gratifying feature of the campaign than the enthusiastic interest taken in the outcome of the Pennsylvania election by President Roosevelt and members of his cabinet.

While it would be contrary to precedent to have either the President or a member of his cabinet refer specifically in commendation of a candidate for a state office in the heat of a campaign, yet the fact that the Secretary of the Treasury has already spoken twice in Pennsylvania, and that Attorney General Moody has accepted an invitation to speak in Philadelphia on October 29, clearly indicates the attitude of the national administration toward the Republican cause in the Keystone state.

While these cabinet officers confine their remarks to national issues, they emphasize the importance of Republicans standing loyally by their party, so that unbroken lines shall be presented to the common enemy, the Democratic party, which in Pennsylvania has as an ally the so-called Lincoln outfit.

Knox Praises Stuart.

Senator Philander C. Knox, who has been in frequent conference with the President recently, and who knows how deeply he is concerned over the present political situation, will preside at the great meeting in Philadelphia at which Attorney General Moody will be the star orator

"I believe that Edwin S. Stuart and the entire Republican ticket in Pennsylvania will be elected," predicted Senator Knox a few days ago "I know Mr. Stuart to be a man of honor, a man in whom the Republicans of Pennsylvania can place full faith in his pledges to protect the interests of the commonwealth upon his election to the Governorship."

Colonel Wesley R Andrews, chairman of the Republican state committee is receiving valuable assistance from Chairman Sherman, of the national Republican congressional committee Some of the strongest speakers on the staff of the national committee have been assigned to Pennsylvania.

What Uncle Joe Cannon Said.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, speaker of the National House of Representatives, figured in an immense Republican demonstration in the Quaker City last week addressing three mass meetings on the same evening.

"Uncle Joe" made this declaration from the platform:

"On November 6 I hope to hear that Pennsylvania has given 100,000 majority for Stuart and the whole Republican ticket.

"I am glad to indorse one of your own citizens who is the candidate for Governor. Edwin S. Stuart, I am proud to say, is both a personal and political friend of mine.

"There is not money enough in the whole commonwealth of Pennsylvania- nay, in the whole world—to swerve the integrity of the candidates on the Republican ticket.

"THEY ARE WORTHY OF YOUR VOTE.

"The Lincoln Party is being used by Democrats to aid them in usurping the balance of power in the Republican party. They falsely claim to be followers of Roosevelt. The Democratic platform adopted two months ago is not in accord with the principles of the President.

"Therefore, how can the Lincoln Party stand for the idea of Roosevelt?

"If you want to hurt our institutions and our industries, turn down the Republican Party and the Republican ticket.

"Under these circumstances you will hurt production where you are now running with energy and hope and enterprise, and you will stop for the next two years, or you will merely mark time or you will advance but slowly.

"It is up to you"

The following itinerary has been arranged by Colonel Daniel B. Shepp, chief of the bureau of speakers of the Republican state committee for Candidate Stuart and his colleagues for the balance of the campaign

Tuesday, October 23, South Bethlehem, Bethlehem and Allentown; Wednesday, October 24, Leighton and White Haven, Thursday, October 25, Montrose and Tunkhannock; Friday, October 26, Towanda and Athens; Saturday, October 27, Carbondale and Scranton Monday, October 29, Doylestown and Bristol, Tuesday, October 30, Media and Chester; Wednesday, October 31, West Chester; Thursday, November 1, Lancaster; Friday, November 2, Norristown; Saturday, November 3, Lebanon.

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Case After Ten Years of Suffering.

When suffering daily torture
From backache, rheumatic pain,
Any ill of kidneys or bladder,
Turn to Doan's Kidney Pills.
A cure endorsed by thousands.
Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

SIDNEY JUSTUS.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Justus will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Finding an Heir

[Original.]

Sidney Pleasandon was despondent. Was he in love? No. Was he impoverished? No; he was rich. Was he in poor health? He was exceptionally healthy. Then what was the matter with him? He had been thwarted in one desire. He wished to find some kin to whom he might leave his fortune, and, contrary to the usual happening in such cases, no one with a drop of Pleasandon blood in his or her veins was to be found.

Pleasandon had run away from his home in England when a lad and, coming to America, had been so absorbed in business that he had not had time to trouble himself about his British relatives. His father was a country gentleman and well to do. Sidney thought that when he could go back with a fortune to make him welcome he would do so; otherwise he would remain away. Forty years after his departure he went back with the fortune, but not a member or descendant from the Pleasandon family could be found. All were dead save the daughter of one of Sidney Pleasandon's sisters. Her mother had married without the consent of the head of the family and had disappeared. The homestead had passed to others.

What we prize in youth we are apt to consider worthless in old age, and vice versa. Pleasandon returned to America with an exalted appreciation for what was denied him—the family he had so long neglected. If he had discovered one member of the family, no matter how remote, he would have found some satisfaction in making him or her happy with a fortune after his own death.

Pleasandon, on his way to his office one day, passed a small house with a little ground in its front protected by a wooden fence. One morning a little girl about four years old, perched on the gate, smiled at him. There was something in the smile that went to the lonely man's heart. The next morning when he passed again the child was waiting for him and held out a dandelion flower. If a highborn dame had given him an armful of roses it would not have moved him, but the dandelion offered by the child struck a chord in his heart that had never before vibrated.

There were many love tokens passing after that between the child and the old man, and once when he went by he saw a woman looking at him curiously, if not suspiciously. He turned, went to the house, and the woman came to the door.

"Will you kindly give me your little girl's name?" he said.

"What do you want with it?"

"She has bestowed upon me the only disinterested gift I have ever received. I wish to repay it. I desire to remember her in my will."

The woman looked at him quizzically.

"No," she said, "you can't be her father. You're too old; but I expect you're in league with him."

"Will you please explain?"

"Well, there's no use beatin' round the bush. I've got the child and I mean to hold on to her. When her mother died, two years ago, she left her with me, and I promised her that I'd bury her in the back woods before her father should lay hands on her. He went to the bad, you know."

"No, I don't know anything about him I have simply seen her while passing to and from my office. If you will give me her full name, when I die she shall be remembered in my will."

"Do you really mean it?"

"I do."

"She's a good little girl, sir, and I should like to have her benefited. She's like her mother, sir; not like her father a bit. Her mother's mother made a bad marriage too. She came of a fine family, sir. She had only one child, this little girl's mother. Both were good women and looked and acted like ladies. Their husbands were well connected, too, but both were worthless. The child's mother told me that her mother had married against her parents' will and they disowned her. Her husband brought her to America, promising to make a fortune and go back and show 'em that they had been mistaken in him, but he never did it. Their daughter married a man that was worthless too."

"Thank you for telling me this." He took out a pencil and a notebook. "Will you give me the child's name?"

"Rosalind Gaskell."

"Any middle name?"

"Yes, I believe there is a middle name, but I'll have to go and look at the writing her mother gave me to see what it is."

She went away and brought an envelope from which she drew a sheet of paper and ran her eyes over the writing that covered it, reading aloud scraps of sentences.

"Mother Crane from England. Thirty years ago. Married Thomas Redfield. I am their only child. My husband is George Gaskell. Rosalind was born May 5, 1898. She is named Rosalind for her father's mother, a dear, good woman, and Pleasandon"—

"Pleasandon!"

"Yes sir."

"Go on."

"From my mother's family the Pleasandons of Chester county, England."

The old man took up the child, who was standing by, and folded her in his arms.

It was not long before Rosalind went to live with her great-uncle, a maid was hired to take care of her, and when she was older a governess began her education. The Pleasandon homestead has been purchased and will belong to her.

ARTHUR D. RENWICK.

AUNT CYNTHIA

[Original.]

As Reginald Crane and his newly wedded wife stepped on the train to go to his home a telegram was handed him. A cloud gathered on his brow

"What is it?" asked his bride anxiously.

"Uncle Frank is dead."

"Well?"

"That means trouble for us. Aunt Cynthia has been very near to me. I am her only near kin. And I must give her a home."

"I have heard that your aunt is a delightful old lady."

"She is, but she has suffered much, and her nerves are unstrung. Uncle Frank understood her condition, and now that he is gone I alone understand it. He as her husband and by disposition was well fitted to bear with her, to comfort and encourage her. For this she will now look to me."

Friends, relatives, connections, waited expectantly to discover if Reginald would provide a home for his aunt. They said nothing to him, but the women cackled among themselves. They did not doubt that Reginald would do his duty, but they wondered if his wife would permit him to do it. The young couple satisfied the family's expectations by inviting Aunt Cynthia to make her home with them, and she removed, bag and baggage, to their house. She was naturally frank, impulsive, generous—indeed, among those who were not constantly with her was very popular. She stepped from her own household, which she had managed for forty years, to the position of guest in the household of Martha Crane.

"She'll make it hot for us both" remarked the young man to himself, but to his wife he said he sincerely hoped the old lady would be happy in her new home and make them happy too. The Van Winkle family, who were most interested in Aunt Cynthia's welfare, waited and watched to see how their relative would be treated, especially by Martha. It was not long before they learned from the old lady herself that, while Reginald was the perfection of kindness, he had made a very unfortunate marriage. Aunt Cynthia was one of those persons who must have confidants, and, honestly believing that she was being very badly treated by her nephew's wife, she poured a tale of woe into the ears of every relative. Her defense of Reginald counted for nothing with these people, because they said he knew when he married Martha Grant that his uncle would not live long and his aunt would need a home, therefore he should not have married at all. This was the position taken by the Van Winkle family, and Peter Van Winkle, when the old lady one day flounced out of her nephew's house and vowed she would no longer live with a woman who persisted in ill treating her, cut Reginald on the street. Other relatives followed suit, and it was not long before the young couple were estranged from every one of the husband's family.

A singular feature of discord is that it is catching. After an explosion with Aunt Cynthia the nerves of the husband and wife were so rasped that they at times fell to quarreling. Every couple has its own troubles to meet without being called upon to suffer needless complications, and the Cranes had theirs The two together so wore on them that they were at times in but little better condition than Aunt Cynthia So it got out, through Aunt Cynthia, that Martha Crane was a shrew and poor dear Reggie was having a terrible life with her This story was confirmed when at last Reginald broke down with nervous prostration. Peter Van Winkle heard of it on his way to prayer meeting and mentioned it in his address to the heavenly throne, calling the Lord's attention to the consequences of persons not doing their duty.

Reginald got better after awhile, but the aunt, not finding another home suited to her taste, came back and settled again with the Cranes. Mrs. Crane became more and more rasped, losing flesh all the while, till at last one spring she was obliged to go into the country early and recruit. Aunt Cynthia begged to go, too, but by this time Reginald and Martha, who saw that finless they could get a rest for a time they would both have to go to an asylum, flatly demurred.

"Why not spend your summer with the Van Winkles?" they suggested.

But the Van Winkles had their plans all formed, and these did not include Aunt Cynthia. They all went to their country places and each wrote to the other: "Just think of poor Aunt Cynthia getting through the long summer as best she can. I would like to tear the hearts—if they had hearts—out of her nephew and his vixen wife."

Not only did the summer plans of the relatives not include Aunt Cynthia, but when they were at home their invitations to her were limited. She was handy with her needle, and whenever sewing was to be done it was "Dear Aunt Cynthia, come and lunch with us. Come at 9 a. m. and spend the day." Aunt Cynthia never suspected that she was needed for a purpose.

When Aunt Cynthia died the relatives concluded to forgive the Cranes, both husband and wife. Peter Van Winkle, the next time he met Reginald, advanced with outstretched hand. Reginald walked by him with eyes in front, and when he met the other Van Winkles he did the same by them.

"Why," asked a mutual friend, "don't you accept the olive branch? Have they treated you so badly?"

"No," replied Reginald; "they treated my aunt badly."

Pittsburg Conference A. M. E. Church.

One of the most interesting sessions in the history of the Pittsburg conference closed last evening. Rev. S. A. Lewis, for two years pastor of the A. M. E. church here has been returned for another year. The following is a list of appointments in the Washington district;

Washington district, Carter Wright, presiding elder—Washington, D. F. Caliman; Uniontown, C. A. McGee; Brownsville, T. E. Wilson; Canonsburg, W. S. Lowry; New Haven, W. N. Young; Charleroi, Richard Brown; Belle Vernon, Sandy Christian; Monessen, S. A. Lewis; Waynesburg, J. W. Riley; Donora and Pleasant Green, A. Smothers; Greensburg, J. W. Skerritt; West Newton, H. C. Astwood; Pike Run, C. E. Wheeler; McGovern, R. H. Baker; West Middleton, T. T. Taggart; Pricedale, J. W. Brown.

THE TWO PROFESSIONS.

A Comparison of the Editor and the Doctor With Relation to the Outside World.

If the editor makes a mistake he has to apologize for it, but the docter makes a mistake he buries it.

If the editor makes one there is a lawsuit, swearin' and the smell of sulphur, but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and the smell of varnish.

A doctor can use a word a yard long 'thout knowing what it means, but if the editor uses it he has to spell it.

If a docter goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit; but if the editor goes to see another man's wife he gets a charge of buck shot.

When a doctor gets drunk, it's a case of "overcome with heat," and if he dies it's "heart trouble." When an editor gets drunk it's a case of too much booze and if he dies its a case of delirium tremens.

Any old college can make a doctor.

You can't make an editor, he has to be born.

BROWN SHOULD RETIRE

Glance Into the Record of One of Emery's Reform Spellbinders.

REBUKED BY SUPREME COURT

Official Reports Tell of Transaction In Which Disgruntled Secretary of Internal Affairs Figured.

Isaac B. Brown, Secretary of Internal Affairs, who is taking the stump for Mr. Emery, is another of that gallant band of reformers who are always questioning the honesty and integrity of other men.

More than 20 years ago Mr. Brown was a "reformer," and vigorously opposed the Republican Organization in Pennsylvania. He was later given a public position at Harrisburg, and for the last 20 years he has held one or another position in the public service.

Mr. Brown is one of the few officers of the state whose name has been indelibly printed upon the public court records of this state.

On Page 515, of the Pennsylvania State Reports, 155, is recorded the case of Goodyear vs. Brown, appellant, in which it was necessary for Justice Williams, of the Supreme Court, to say:

"Such dealings by an officer of the state are to be regretted, because of their necessary consequences, and a proper consideration for the public security and for the confidence of citizen in the officers of the state forbid them. Public policy cannot tolerate such dealings by an officer with his own department or office. It will not uphold them."

A Man That Failed.

The facts of this case briefly stated are about these: In the year 1891 the Goodyear Lumber Company was reporting in Potter county, Pa., cutting and sawing timber. It had secured by purchase title to a number of sections of land, among others one known on the records of the state as No. 4714, embracing about 900 acres. The operations at the time were being conducted on an adjoining parcel.

Isaac Brown, then Deputy Secretary of Internal Affairs, attempted on January 29, 1891, to patent No. 4714, and had a deputy surveyor for Potter county make a survey of this 900 acres. The records show that the Goodyear Company and its producers in the ownership of the 900 acres of land which Brown attempted to secure had been paying taxes on this land for almost a century. There never had been any atempt to cloud the title, or raise any question as to its legality. As Justice Williams says, in his opinion, Isaac B. Brown made an effort to patent and take title to this land "with the fullest knowledge on the part of the secretary and his deputy, that the land was claimed under an older title." A protest was made to the board of property of Pennsylvania, but was denied. Brown received his patent May 7, 1891. Goodyear then went into the courts.

Judge Olmstead, of Potter county sustained Goodyear's title to the property. Brown appealed to the Supreme Court, and on May 22, 1893, Mr. Justice Williams handed down an opinion declaring the patent held by Brown to be invalid. Scoring Mr. Brown in this very unmistakable language:

"When the trial was reached in the court below it turned out that the deputy surveyor who had located the warrant of 1891, and who had the right of custody of the records of that office was put in an unfortunate position for his disinterestedness as a witness by the fact that his wife had become a part owner of the land under a grant from the Deputy Secretary.

"An experienced surveyor from an adjoining county, whose familiarity with the original lines in that region made his testimony of great importance in reaching a conclusion as to the proper location of No. 4714, had been placed in the same predicament by the same expedient. His wife was also a part owner, deriving her title from the Deputy Secretary.

Rebuked From the Court.

"This remarkable combination may have been accidental. We presume it was innocent. Nevertheless, to litigants whose property is at stake, and to spectators, measuring the acts of men by the common business standards, it suggests possible dangers and temptations on which we will not enlarge.

"Such dealings by an officer are to be regretted, because of their necessary consequences, and a proper consideration for the public security and for the confidence of citizens in the officers of the state forbid them. Public policy cannot tolerate such dealings by an officer with his own department or office. It will not uphold them.

"It follows that the warrant issued to the Deputy Secretary of Internal Affairs confers not title as against a claimant under an older survey to the land in the controversy. The warrant was issued contrary to public policy."
